

Ah Back Math: Answers Knowing All Angles

Highly skilled, but scarce professionals—Africa's rich human resource advantage is hampered, and opportunities to enter a new, high-technology sector are limited by poor and aging schools and universities. Many of the young people who are trained in Africa are not trained in the right areas, and many of those who are trained are not trained to the standards of the developed world. The result is that Africa's human resources are not being used to their full potential. The continent's human resources are not being used to their full potential. The continent's human resources are not being used to their full potential.
