HUMAN ANATOMY AND PHYSIOLOGY

Body of the human organism is divided into two main parts:

Anatomy

The study of the structure of the human body and the relationship of the body to its environment.

Physiology

The study of the function of the human body and the relationship of the body to its environment.

Structural levels

Body structure is organized into several levels of organization:

- 1. Chemical level: atoms and molecules
- 2. Cellular level: cells and tissues
- 3. Tissue level: groups of similar cells
- 4. Organ level: organs and systems
- 5. Organ system level: groups of organs
- 6. Organism level: the whole body

CELLS AND TISSUES

Cells are the basic units of structure and function of the body.

Organization of cellular levels

Cells are organized into tissues, which are groups of similar cells.

Tissues are organized into organs, which are groups of tissues.

Organs are organized into systems, which are groups of organs.

Systems are organized into the whole body.

The whole body is organized into the human organism.

The Epithelium is the outermost layer of the body, which covers all surfaces.

It is composed of cells that are closely packed together.

Epithelial cells are organized into layers, which are called strata.

The stratum corneum is the outermost layer of the epidermis.

It is composed of dead, flattened cells.

These cells are shed and replaced by new cells.

NERVOUS SYSTEM

Functions

The nervous system controls and coordinates the body's activities.

It receives information from the environment and the body.

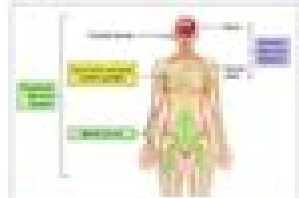

It processes this information and sends out instructions.

These instructions control the body's response to the environment.

The nervous system is divided into the central nervous system (CNS) and the peripheral nervous system (PNS).

The CNS is located in the brain and spinal cord.

The PNS is located throughout the body.

Structure

The nervous system is composed of neurons and glial cells.

Neurons are the cells that transmit information.

Glial cells support and protect the neurons.

The nervous system is organized into a hierarchy.

At the top is the brain, which controls the body's activities.

Below the brain is the spinal cord, which carries information to and from the rest of the body.

At the bottom are the peripheral nerves, which connect the brain and spinal cord to the rest of the body.

LEVELS OF ORGANIZATION

The levels of organization of the human body are:

1. Chemical level

2. Cellular level

3. Tissue level

4. Organ level

5. Organ system level

6. Organism level

Types of neurons

There are three main types of neurons:

1. Sensory neurons

2. Motor neurons

3. Interneurons

ORGAN SYSTEMS OF THE BODY

The body is organized into several organ systems:

1. Integumentary system: skin and its derivatives

2. Skeletal system: bones and cartilage

3. Muscular system: muscles

4. Nervous system: brain, spinal cord, and nerves

5. Endocrine system: glands that secrete hormones

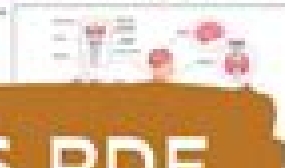

6. Circulatory system: heart and blood vessels

7. Respiratory system: lungs and airways

8. Digestive system: mouth, stomach, and intestines

9. Urinary system: kidneys and bladder

10. Reproductive system: organs that produce offspring

ENDOCRINE SYSTEM

- 1. Pituitary gland: controls growth, development, and metabolism
- 2. Thyroid gland: controls metabolism
- 3. Parathyroid glands: control calcium levels
- 4. Adrenal glands: produce hormones that control stress and metabolism
- 5. Pancreas: produces insulin, which controls blood sugar levels
- 6. Gonads: produce sex hormones and gametes

Functions of the endocrine system

The endocrine system controls the body's metabolism and growth.

It also controls the body's response to stress and other environmental factors.

The endocrine system is composed of several glands:

1. Pituitary gland

2. Thyroid gland

3. Parathyroid glands

4. Adrenal glands

5. Pancreas

6. Gonads
