Vogler, 2016-03-10

Industrialized housing has been a common phenomenon in the building industry since the industrial revolution the casting of iron components enabled Victorian iron casters to prefabricate entire buildings and to export them to all British colonies It got a second boost from Modernist architects like Ludwig Mies van der Rohe Walter Gropius and Konrad Wachsmann and a third boost in the US when the soldiers came back from the Second World War in 1945 and wanted to buy a ready made house In the later decades of the 20th century composite prototypes were built Timber frame houses are extremely popular in low density areas worldwide For densely populated areas housing is now firmly attached to reinforced concrete The contracting industries have developed efficient building methods for the concrete structures on which separate systems of claddings are fixed to form a house However in the coming decades designers builders and scientists also have to keep the environment in mind working with a minimal amount of materials and for minimizing embodied energy and energy use In the coming age minimal embodied energy and low ecological footprints are renewed values that will be added to energy positive housing and that will have an influence on the building technology of the future This will lead to a reformation of the building vocabulary Other materials will have to be chosen and developed to function in building elements and components

Condition-Based Maintenance in Aviation Ravi Rajamani, 2018-12-11 Condition Based Maintenance in Aviation The History The Business and The Technology describes the history and practice of Condition Based Maintenance CBM systems by showcasing ten technical papers from the archives of SAE International stretching from the dawn of the jet age down to the present times By scientifically understanding how different components degrade during operations it is possible to schedule inspections repairs and overhauls at appropriate intervals so that any incipient failure can be detected well in advance Today this includes more sensors and analytics so that periodic inspections are replaced by automated continuous inspections and analytical methods that detect imminent failures and predict degradation issues more economically and efficiently Similar concepts are also being developed for delivering prognostics functions such as tracking of remaining useful life RUL of life limited parts in aircraft engines The discipline within CBM that deals with this is called prognostics and health management PHM which covers all aspects of diagnostics and prognostics including modeling of systems and subsystems sensing data transmission storage and retrieval analytical methods and decision making Traditionally nondestructive testing NDT methods have been employed during the major airplane checks to assess structural damage These techniques are enhanced with in situ sensing techniques that can continuously monitor aircraft structures and report on their health The move to condition based assessment of maintenance needs to be balanced by the assurance that safety is not compromised that initial cost of new equipment is amortized by the savings and that regulatory authorities are on board with any modifications to the planned maintenance schedule The trend is clearly to include more CBM functions into Maintenance Repair and Overhaul MRO processes so better cost control can be achieved without ever comprising passenger safety Speednews ,1994 *Módulo 11.
