Cognitive Dimensions of Social Science

Mark Turner, 2001 What will be the future of social science Where exactly do we stand and where do we go from here What kinds of problems should we be addressing with what kinds of approaches and arguments In this volume Mark Turner offers an answer to these pressing questions

Game Equilibrium Models I Reinhard Selten, 2013-06-29 There are two main approaches towards the phenotypic analysis of frequency dependent natural selection First there is the approach of evolutionary game theory which was introduced in 1973 by John Maynard Smith and George R Price In this theory the dynamical process of natural selection is not modeled explicitly Instead the selective forces acting within a population are represented by a fitness function which is then analysed according to the concept of an evolutionarily stable strategy or ESS Later on the static approach of evolutionary game theory has been complemented by a dynamic stability analysis of the replicator equations Introduced by Peter D Taylor and Leo B Jonker in 1978 these equations specify a class of dynamical systems which provide a simple dynamic description of a selection process Usually the investigation of the replicator dynamics centers around a stability analysis of their stationary solutions Although evolutionary stability and dynamic stability both intend to characterize the long term outcome of frequency dependent selection these concepts differ considerably in the philosophies on which they are based It is therefore not too surprising that they often lead to quite different evolutionary predictions see e g Weissing 1983 The present paper intends to illustrate the incongruities between the two approaches towards a phenotypic theory of natural selection A detailed game theoretical and dynamical analysis is given for a generic class of evolutionary normal form games advance they became cognitively modern This development made possible the invention of the vast range of knowledge practices and institutions that social scientists try to explain For Turner the anchor of all social science anthropology political science sociology economics must be the study of the cognitively modern human mind In this book Turner moves the study of those extraordinary mental powers to the center of social scientific research and analysis
