Maloney, 2020-07-01 King of the Cold War crisis

film Dr Strangelove became a cultural touchstone from the moment of its release in 1964. The duck and cover generation saw it as a satire on nuclear issues and Cold War thinking. Subsequent generations removed from the film's historical moment came to view it as a quasi documentary about an unfathomable secret world. Sean M Maloney uses Dr Strangelove and other genre classics like Fail Safe and The Bedford Incident to investigate a curious pop cultural contradiction. Nuclear crisis films repeatedly portrayed the failures of the Cold War's deterrent system. Yet the system worked. What does this inconsistency tell us about the genre? What does it tell us about the deterrent system for that matter? Blending film analysis with Cold War history, Maloney looks at how the celluloid crises stack up against reality or at least as much of reality as we can reconstruct from these films with confidence. The result is a daring intellectual foray that casts new light on Dr Strangelove, one of the Cold War era's defining films.

Tools of War, Tools of State Robert Tynes, 2018-09-01 Examines why many governments, rebels and terrorist organizations are using children as soldiers. Despite the supposed taboo against the practice, many governments, rebels and terrorist groups use children in war to spy and kill. In Tools of War, Tools of State, Robert Tynes examines this complex problem, demonstrating that the modern use of children in war is a tactical innovation. He discusses how boys and girls on the battlefield bolster troop size, create moral dilemmas and deepen the level of fear. He also reveals how the practice has become an essential component for groups such as ISIS and al Shabaab in their state-making projects. Using statistical methods to analyze conflicts from 1987 to 2007, Tynes shows how widespread child soldier use is and confirms the theory that it is tactically advantageous. Through historical analysis, he explains how child soldiering developed out of Mao's protracted war theory and the militarization of youth during the twentieth century. A case study of the civil war in Sierra Leone, which details the brutality involved when children are forced to fight, is included.
