Syllabus

Spring 2008

Mr. Burns

Course Objectives

The purpose of this course is to help students “write effectively and confidently in their college courses across the curriculum and in their professional and personal lives” (The College Board, AP English Course Description, May 2007, p. 6). The course is organized according to the requirements and guidelines of the current AP English Course Description, and, therefore, students are expected to read critically, think analytically, and communicate clearly both in writing and speech. To prepare students for the new documented essay this spring, the course teaches, “students to read primary and secondary sources carefully, to synthesize material from these texts in their own compositions, and to cite sources using conventions recommended by professional organizations such as the Modern Language Association (MLA)” (AP English Course Description).

The course focuses on the rhetoric of the essay, beginning with narrative and descriptive writing and culminating with argument and persuasion. Students employ narration and description in the fall to write their college essays. From there, they learn how division and classification, comparison and contrast, cause and effect, process analysis, and definition work together to form analytical thinking and writing. Students draw on these skills to write formal argument and to synthesize their thoughts into evaluation essays.

Concurrent with their focus on writing, students focus on reading. Using close reading techniques, students increase their awareness of an author’s purpose, the needs of an audience, the demands of the subject, and the resources of language: syntax, word choice, and tone. As they amplify their awareness of the nuances of language, students increase their grasp of the rhetoric of argument.

Style

Style is a major component of writing. Students study aspects of style within the context of the essays they read. They are asked to observe the power of constructions like the appositive phrase, the participial phrase, and the absolute phrase. They need to recognize and be able to use the following aspects of style: parallelism, antithesis, anastrophe, parenthesis, ellipsis, alliteration, anaphora, chiasmus, metaphor, simile, synecdoche, metonymy, personification, litotes, oxymoron, and paradox.

The Writing Process

Students generate ideas for writing by doing free-writes and using circle maps and bubble maps. They use the Venn diagram for comparative work, tree maps for classifying, and flow maps for cause/effect sequencing. Student use detail charts to structure essays. The Argument and Persuasion Detail Chart, for example, illustrates for student a system for argument that moves from background on a topic to the negative claim, followed by the

Phases Klaus Abels, 2012-10-30 The minimalist notion of a phase has often been investigated with a view to the interfaces Phases provides a strictly syntax internal perspective If phases are fundamental they should provide the grounds for a unifying treatment of different syntactic phenomena Concentrating on displacement the book argues that this expectation is borne out there is an empirical clustering of properties whereby the phrases that undergo pied piping are also the phrases that host intermediate traces of cyclic movement The same phrases also host partial and secondary movement Finally the immediate complements within these phrases never strand the embedding heads The phrases that show this behaviour are the phases CP vP DP and PP To account for the cluster of properties phases are claimed to have two special properties their complement is inaccessible to operations outside the Phase Impenetrability Condition their heads may be endowed with unvalued features that are neither connected to the categorial status of the phase nor interpreted on it It is shown how the cluster of empirical properties flows naturally from these two assumptions supporting the idea that phases are indeed a fundamental construct in syntax
