rehabilitation by enabling the restoration of neural pathways In advanced age MI can preserve mobility and cognitive function It can also mitigate age related cognitive decline and thus maintain quality of life by preserving neural plasticity Despite its importance across the human lifespan MI is a topic that requires further analysis as it remains unclear how different types of imagery and their associated cognitive processes differ This research topic aims to find an answer to this call by examining the central role of MI across the lifespan with a particular focus on its importance for cognitive development skill acquisition and rehabilitation Recent advances in neuroimaging and cognitive neuroscience have provided valuable insights into the neural basis of MI and introduced new methods that could revolutionize its practical application A thorough understanding of these mechanisms will enable the development of customized approaches that consider the specific needs of the tasks and the individuals involved This clarification will allow MI to be successfully integrated into educational programs sports training and rehabilitation therapies By tailoring interventions to different populations we can transfer the principles of physical training into MI practice to optimize motor learning and rehabilitation outcomes We welcome contributions that broaden our understanding of MI at all stages of life and focus on developmental aspects performance enhancement and rehabilitation We are particularly interested in original papers review articles and interdisciplinary studies that address but are not limited to the following research subtopics Neurophysiological basis of MI at different developmental stages The contribution of MI to sport and performance enhancement The use of MI in clinical and rehabilitation settings Innovative methodological approaches to the evaluation and implementation of MI Contributions linking MI to advances in cognitive psychology neurology or Artificial Intelligence This Research Topic invites an array of contributions including but not limited to original research review papers systematic reviews with or without meta analysis and research methods all aiming to develop a holistic understanding of MI and promote its practical application in different age groups
