

Modern World History Framework

Modern World History focuses on developing students' understanding of world history from approximately 1300 to the present. In world history students interpret evidence and identify significant trends in order to understand major developments across the globe. Students will explore how humans have thought, behaved and interacted across the ages in order to develop an understanding of global patterns of change and continuity. Students of world history study specific people, events, and ideas by situating them in global, interregional, and regional contexts. Organizationally, world history requires students to shift between global, interregional, and regional spatial scales in order to emphasize interactions between different scales of historical study and to identify connections across time and geography. The spatial scales incorporated in this framework are:

- Global Focus: Concentrates on large-scale patterns occurring in several areas of the globe.
- Interregional Focus: Concentration on patterns and comparisons linking multiple regions across geography within a particular era.
- Regional Focus: Concentration on local, state, national or regional events within a particular era with significance to global and/or interregional events.

Student investigation of world history is further structured by the use of overarching historical themes that link the four units of the course. While examining content, students are tracing:

- Interaction between humans and the environment;
- Development and interactions of cultures;
- State building, expansion and conflict;
- Creation, expansion and interaction of economic systems; and
- Development and transformation of social structures.

To assist students in acquiring these skills, the content of the course is arranged around five of the six state social studies standards:

Standard 1.0 Civics	Students will understand the historical development and current status of the fundamental concepts and processes of authority, power, and influence with particular emphasis on the democratic skills and attitudes necessary to become responsible citizens.
Standard 2.0 Peoples of the Nations and World	Students will understand the diversity and commonality, human interdependence, and global cooperation of the people of Maryland, the United States, and the world through both a multicultural and historic perspective.
