in neuroscience research Raffaele d'Isa,Stefania Fasano,Riccardo Brambilla,2024-07-03 Rodent behavioral testing has been used to study brain functions since the 1890s and has become a gold standard model in modern neuroscience Up to the 1950s most behavioral tests on laboratory rodent models were based on punishments and rewards Both approaches can lead to a certain degree of animal pain or suffering Punishments involved the employment of painful stimuli typically electric shocks Passive avoidance and fear conditioning tests among the most widely used behavioral paradigms used to evaluate learning and memory in rodents can be performed using only a single brief shock Other tests such as the active avoidance might require up to tens or hundreds of shocks strongly challenging the psychological welfare of the model animals On the other hand tests based on rewards which apparently may seem more ethical actually still induce suffering in the animals as food rewards are almost always associated with a food restriction protocol in order to motivate food seeking behavior Rodents are starved for days before starting the test and kept under food restriction for the whole duration of the test The distress during the testing session is only a minimal part compared to the stress lived outside of the testing session which is prolonged and continuous Analogously liquid rewards commonly rely on a previous water restriction protocol to use thirst as motivation Animal stress is not only an ethical issue per se but also an important factor potentially impacting on the

Neurobehavioral Toxicity Bernard Weiss,1994-06-30 In establishing how certain chemicals can cause behavioural disorders the process of neurotoxicity risk assessment poses significant challenges to every discipline within neuroscience In this volume leaders from industrial academic and government settings share insights on behavioural measurement in neurotoxicity risk assessment and address the critical scientific issues arising from the expanding role of neurobehavioral toxicology in public policy development The authors set out to provide a comprehensive and authoritative review of current methods in the analysis and interpretation of neurobehavioural toxicology Coverage begins with a discussion of criteria for determining neurotoxic potential The next section examines neurobehavioural evaluations in developmental neurotoxicity Subsequent sections focus on activity and observational data and applications of schedule controlled operant behaviour in toxicity testing The contributors address controversies surrounding the suitability and interpretation of procedures designed for neurotoxicological assessments Some case studies are also included

Aluminium and Alzheimer's Disease C. Exley,2001-07-03 The subject of aluminium and Alzheimer s disease has been plagued with controversy This controversy has served to obscure much of the scientific research in this field and subsequently has obscured the possibility that aluminium is a contributory factor in the aetiology of Alzheimer s disease This book brings together many of the world s leading scientists researching aluminium and life and contains their critical summaries on the known facts about aluminium toxicity in man and to offer an opinion on the implications of this knowledge on a link between aluminium and Alzheimer s disease The subject areas of the chapters were chosen to reflect the myriad of ways that aluminium is known to impact upon mammalian physiology and function and range from clinical studies through animal models of disease to the detailed biochemistry of aluminium toxicity Chapters are also included on epidemiology and other factors involved in the aetiology of Alzheimer s This is the first time that this subject has been treated in such a comprehensive manner The research detailed in each chapter includes the latest research in the field it has been critically appraised and this appraisal has been used by each author to present an informed opinion of its relevance to aluminium and Alzheimer s disease The chapters are much more than reviews they are a statement of the state of the art and of what the future may hold for research in this field As a whole they show the high quality of research that has been carried out in our efforts to understand the toxicity of aluminium in man and that we are far away from discounting the possibility that aluminium is a contributory factor in the aetiology of Alzheimer's disease
