Report on Human Rights Practices Country of Azerbaijan U. S. Department of State,2012-12-25 The Azerbaijan constitution provides for a republic with a presidential form of government Legislative authority is vested in the Milli Mejlis parliament In practice the president dominated the executive legislative and judicial branches of government November 2010 Milli Mejlis elections did not meet a number of key standards of the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe OSCE for democratic elections Although there were more than 50 political parties the president s party the Yeni Azerbaijan Party dominated the political system Ethnic Armenian separatists with Armenia s support continued to control most of the Nagorno Karabakh region of the country and seven surrounding Azerbaijani territories The government did not exercise any control over developments in those territories Security forces reported to civilian authorities The most significant human rights problem during the year was the restriction of freedoms of expression assembly and association For example throughout the year but especially in the spring several political protests calling for democratic reform and the government s resignation were forcefully dispersed and 15 protesters were sentenced to 18 months to three years in jail for their participation in such protests Applications to hold protests in Baku were repeatedly denied throughout the year A second significant human rights problem involved the fairness of the administration of justice due to reports of strong executive branch influence over the judiciary lack of due process politically motivated imprisonments measures against independent lawyers and reports of torture and abuse in police or military custody that resulted in at least nine deaths A third major problem area was the violation of citizens property rights including forced evictions and demolitions on dubious eminent domain grounds and inadequate compensation Azerbaijan: Country Reports on Human Rights Practices , The U S

Department of State Bureau of Democracy Human Rights and Labor presents the 2000 Country Reports on Human Rights Practices for Azerbaijan which was released in February 2001 The report provides an overview of the country and discusses the respect for and abuses of human rights in Azerbaijan Azerbaijan Impunity for Torture , Report of the Special Rapporteur on the Situation of Human Rights Defenders on His Mission to Azerbaijan United Nations. General Assembly,2017 Azerbaijan 2016 Human Rights Report U. S. U. S. State Department,2017-03-03 The Azerbaijani constitution provides for a republic with a presidential form of government Legislative authority is vested in the Milli Mejlis The president dominated the executive legislative and judicial branches of government On September 26 constitutional amendments were approved that inter alia increased the president s term in office from five to seven years and expanded the powers of the president Other amendments included a provision permitting the further restriction of freedom of assembly The constitutional referendum was marked by widespread credible complaints of irregularities Legislative elections in November 2015 could not be fully assessed due to the absence of an Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe OSCE election observation mission independent observers alleged irregularities throughout the country The 2013 presidential election did not meet a number of key OSCE standards for democratic elections
