SECTION 3A WHEEL ALIGNMENT

NOTE: When components are inspected, prepositioned them in the usual location from which they were removed. It is helpful, usually, to be replaced, use the correct part number location for that application. If the correct part number is not known, consult a dealer or repair shop and compare the component with the one. Components that are damaged, and those requiring thread locking compound, will be called out. The correct torque values must be used when installing bearings and regular drive. If the above procedures are not followed, parts or systems damage could result.

DIAGNOSIS

Four-wheel and wheel alignment diagnosis procedures are in Section 18-1.

GENERAL DESCRIPTION

Wheel alignment refers to the angular relationship between the wheels, the suspension attaching parts and the ground. The angle of the wheels away from vertical is measured from the front of the vehicle and the side of the suspension members from vertical. When a wheel is turned from vertical, the vehicle's, are measured as alignment.

FOUR WHEEL ALIGNMENT

A complete wheel alignment check should be performed when a service check is found necessary. Complete wheel alignment includes the measurement of all four wheels. Four wheel alignment ensures that all four wheels will be moving in precisely the same direction. When the vehicle is geometrically in alignment, four corners and the axle are balanced and steering and suspension are maintained.

CASTER

Caster is the tilting of the upper front point of the steering knuckle forward or backward from the vertical when viewed from the side of the vehicle. A front wheel tilting forward is called positive (+) and a backward tilt is negative (-) Caster.

influences directional control of the steering, but does not affect toe wear.

Caster is affected by vehicle height. Therefore, it is important to know the body or its alignment height. Overloading the vehicle or a weak or sagging rear spring will affect the caster. When the rear of the vehicle is lower than its designed ride height, the front suspension reacts to a positive caster. If the rear of the vehicle is higher than its designed ride height, the front suspension reacts to a less positive caster.

CAMBER

Camber is the tilting of the wheels from the vertical when viewed from the front of the vehicle. When the wheels tilt inward at the top, the camber is positive (+). When the wheels tilt outward, the camber is negative (-). The amount of inward or outward tilt from the vertical is the camber angle. Camber influences both directional control and tire wear.

TOR

Tor is a measurement of how much the front of the wheels are tilted in or out from the geometric centerline from top. When the wheels are tilted in from top, toe is "positive" (+). When the wheels are tilted out from top, toe is "negative" (-). The actual amount of toe is normally only a fraction of a degree. The purpose of toe is to ensure that the wheels will parallel.
