Edgar Hoover Goes to the Movies John Sbardellati, 2012-05-01 Between 1942 and 1958 J Edgar Hoover's Federal Bureau of Investigation conducted a sweeping and sustained investigation of the motion picture industry to expose Hollywood's alleged subversion of the American Way through its depiction of social problems class differences and alternative political ideologies FBI informants their names still redacted today reported to Hoover's G men on screenplays and screenings of such films as Frank Capra's It's a Wonderful Life 1946 noting that this picture deliberately maligned the upper class attempting to show that people who had money were mean and despicable characters The FBI's anxiety over this film was not unique it extended to a wide range of popular and critical successes including The Grapes of Wrath 1940 The Best Years of Our Lives 1946 Crossfire 1947 and On the Waterfront 1954 In J Edgar Hoover Goes to the Movies John Sbardellati provides a new consideration of Hollywood's history and the post World War II Red Scare In addition to governmental intrusion into the creative process he details the efforts of left wing filmmakers to use the medium to bring social problems to light and the campaigns of their colleagues on the political right through such organizations as the Motion Picture Alliance for the Preservation of American Ideals to prevent dissemination of un American ideas and beliefs Sbardellati argues that the attack on Hollywood drew its motivation from a sincerely held fear that film content endangered national security by fostering a culture that would be at best apathetic to the Cold War struggle at best or at its worst conducive to communism at home Those who took part in Hollywood's Cold War struggle whether on the left or right shared one common trait a belief that the movies could serve as engines for social change This strongly held assumption explains why the stakes were so high and ultimately why Hollywood became one of the most important ideological battlegrounds of the Cold War
