2014 Mathematics Poct Nov Examnation Memoradam:

Caught in the Act Cyril Julie,Lorna Holtman,Charles R. Smith,2019-12-11 The research reported in Caught in the Act draws together the insights gained from a continuous professional development initiative for high school mathematics teachers teaching in low socio economic status and socially challenged environments in South Africa The chapters show the possibilities for enhancing achievement in school mathematics if a strength based approach is adopted to develop teaching with teachers and when their concerns are taken seriously The book demonstrates that the ecological relevance fitness for the context in which teachers are teaching of the goods developed and distributed by initiatives should be a major consideration to offer hope for sustainable implementation to improve school mathematics education The book is of interest to mathematics teachers school leaders mathematics curriculum advisors policy makers and researchers Studies in Intelligence ,2016

Rhetoric and Communication Perspectives on Domestic Violence and Sexual Assault Amy D. Proppen,Mary Schuster,2017-03-16 This book brings rhetorical legal and professional communication perspectives to the discourse surrounding policy making efforts within the United States around two types of violent crimes against women domestic violence and sexual assault The authors propose that such analysis adds to our understanding of rhetorical concepts such as kairos risk perception moral panic genre analysis and identity theory Overall the goal is to demonstrate how rhetorical legal and professional communication perspectives work together to illuminate public discourse and conflict in such complicated and ongoing dilemmas as how to aid victims of domestic violence and sexual assault and how to manage the offenders of such crimes social and cultural problems that continue to perplex the legal system and the social environment

Monthly Catalogue, United States Public Documents ,1965 Third Symposium Proceedings. New Ways of Teaching and Learning Janina Morska,Alan Rogerson, This volume contains the papers presented at the Third International Symposium on New Ways of Teaching Learning held from August 6 10 2024 at the Aemilia Hotel Bologna Italy The Conference was organized by The Mathematics Education for the Future Project an international educational project founded in 1986 and dedicated to innovation in mathematics statistics science and computer education world wide Yearbook of International Organizations 2013-2014 (Volumes 1a-1b) Union Of International Associations,Union of International

Associations,2013-06-21 Volume 1 A and B covers international organizations throughout the world comprising their aims activities and events Bridging the Seas Larrie D. Ferreiro,2020-01-21 How the introduction of steam iron and steel required new rules and new ways of thinking for the design and building of ships In the 1800s shipbuilding moved from sail and wood to steam iron and steel The competitive pressure to achieve more predictable ocean transportation drove the industrialization of shipbuilding as shipowners demanded ships that enabled tighter scheduling improved performance and safe delivery of cargoes In Bridging the Seas naval historian Larrie Ferreiro describes this transformation of shipbuilding portraying the rise of a professionalized naval architecture as an integral part of the Industrial Age Picking up where his earlier book Ships and Science left off Ferreiro explains that the introduction of steam iron and steel required new rules and new ways of thinking for designing and building ships The characteristics of performance had to be first measured then theorized Ship theory led to the development of quantifiable standards that would ensure the safety and quality required by industry and governments and this in turn led to the professionalization of naval architecture as an engineering discipline Ferreiro describes among other things the technologies that allowed greater predictability in ship performance theoretical developments in naval architecture regarding motion speed and power propellers maneuvering and structural design the integration of theory into ship design and construction and the emergence of a laboratory infrastructure for research

How We Teach Science John L. Rudolph, 2019-06-01 A former Wisconsin high school science teacher makes the case that how and why we teach science matters especially now that its legitimacy is under attack Why teach science The answer to that question will determine how it is taught Yet despite the enduring belief in this country that science should be taught there has been no enduring consensus about how or why This is especially true when it comes to teaching scientific process Nearly all of the basic knowledge we have about the world is rock solid The science we teach in high schools in particular laws of motion the structure of the atom cell division DNA replication the universal speed limit of light is accepted as the way nature works Everyone also agrees that students and the public more generally should understand the methods used to gain this knowledge But what exactly is the scientific method Ever since the late 1800s scientists and science educators have grappled with that question Through the years they've advanced an assortment of strategies ranging from the laboratory method to the five step method to science as inquiry to no method at all How We Teach Science reveals that each strategy was influenced by the intellectual cultural and political circumstances of the time In some eras learning about experimentation and scientific inquiry was seen to contribute to an individual's intellectual and moral improvement while in others it was viewed as a way to minimize public interference in institutional science John Rudolph shows that how we think about and teach science will either sustain or thwart future innovation and ultimately determine how science is perceived and received by the public

What can simple brains teach us about how vision works Davide Zoccolan, David D. Cox, Andrea Benucci, R. Clay Reid, 2015-11-18 Vision is the process of extracting behaviorally relevant information from patterns of light that fall on retina as the eyes sample the outside world Traditionally nonhuman primates macaque monkeys in particular have been viewed by many as the animal model of choice for investigating the neuronal substrates of visual processing not only because their visual systems closely mirror our own but also because it is often assumed that simpler brains lack advanced visual processing machinery However this narrow view of visual neuroscience ignores the fact that vision is widely distributed throughout the animal kingdom enabling a wide repertoire of complex behaviors in species from insects to birds fish and mammals Recent years have seen a resurgence of interest in alternative animal models for vision research especially rodents This resurgence is partly due to the availability of increasingly powerful experimental approaches e g optogenetics and two photon imaging that are challenging to apply to their full potential in primates Meanwhile even more phylogenetically distant species such as birds fish and insects have long been workhorse animal models for gaining insight into the core computations underlying visual processing In many cases these animal models are valuable precisely because their visual systems are simpler than the primate visual system Simpler systems are often easier to understand and studying a diversity of neuronal systems that achieve similar functions can focus attention on those computational principles that are universal and essential This Research Topic provides a survey of the state of the art in the use of animal models of visual functions that are alternative to macaques It includes original research methods articles reviews and opinions that exploit a variety of animal models including rodents birds fishes and insects as well as small New World monkey the marmoset to investigate visual function The experimental approaches covered by these studies range from psychophysics and electrophysiology to histology and genetics testifying to the richness and depth of visual neuroscience in non macaque species
