Abstract

These authors proposed a group of three related adaptive algorithms for the estimation of the parameters of the autoregressive moving average model. The first algorithm is based on the least squares method, the second on the maximum likelihood method, and the third on the recursive least squares method. The authors also proposed a new algorithm for the estimation of the parameters of the autoregressive moving average model, which is based on the recursive least squares method. The authors also proposed a new algorithm for the estimation of the parameters of the autoregressive moving average model, which is based on the recursive least squares method.
