Question 10/10	Which of the following is NOT a function of the hippocampus?	10	100%
Answered	The hippocampus is a structure in the brain that is involved in the formation of new memories. It is located in the medial temporal lobe and is part of the limbic system. The hippocampus is responsible for the storage and retrieval of information, particularly for the formation of new memories. It is also involved in the regulation of emotions and the control of the autonomic nervous system. The hippocampus is not involved in the storage of long-term memories. Long-term memories are stored in the neocortex, which is the part of the brain responsible for higher-level functions such as reasoning, planning, and problem-solving. The hippocampus is responsible for the initial storage of information, which is then transferred to the neocortex for long-term storage. The hippocampus is also involved in the regulation of emotions and the control of the autonomic nervous system.
