Ar Test On Code Talker:

After Artest David J. Leonard, 2012-04-24 On November 19 2004 a fight between NBA players Ron Artest and Ben Wallace escalated into a melee involving several other players and many fans The Palace Brawl writes David J Leonard was a seminal event one that dramatically altered outside perceptions of the sport With commentators decrying the hip hop or gangsta culture of players the blackness of the NBA was both highlighted and disdained This was a harsh blow to the league's narrative of colorblindness long cultivated by Commissioner David Stern and powerfully embodied in the beloved figure of Michael Jordan As Leonard demonstrates the league viewed this moment as a threat needing intervention quickly adopting policies to govern black players and prevent them from embracing styles and personas associated with blackness This fascinating book discloses connections between the NBA's discourse and the broader discourse of antiblack racism Particular policy changes that seemed aimed at black players such as the NBA dress code and the debate over a minimum age requirement are explored

The Comanche Code Talkers of World War II William C. Meadows, 2002 This book tells the full story of the Comanche Code Talkers for the first time Drawing on interviews with all surviving members of the unit their original training officer and fellow soldiers as well as military records and news accounts the author follows the group from their recruitment and training to their active duty in World War II and on through their postwar lives up to present He also provides the first comparison of Native American code talking programs comparing the Comanche Code Talkers with their better known Navajo counterparts in the Pacific and with other Native American code talking in World Wars I and II identifying two distinct forms of Native American code talking examining the attitudes of the American military toward Native American code talkers and assessing the complex cultural factors that led Comanche and other Native Americans to serve their country in this way
