

Applications of Area, Length and Distance

1. A sector of a circle is a region of the circle bounded by a central angle and the corresponding arc.

As proportional relationships exist between the central angle bounding the sector and the complete circle, these have previously determined relationships that could be used to predict that arc length of a circle is directly proportional to the central angle and to the radius of the circle. This function gives the arc length of a circle of radius r in terms of θ .

$$\text{Arc Length} = \frac{\theta}{360} (\text{circumference of circle})$$

Another way to find arc length is to think about, just as, where relationships. As you collected that the area under the probability density function of a random variable is roughly a function of the circle's circumference, the arc length of a circle of radius r is roughly proportional to the circumference of the circle of radius r .

$$\frac{\text{Arc Length}}{\text{Circumference}} = \frac{\text{Angle of Sector}}{360}$$

Similarly, you can predict a function that could be used to predict the area under a central angle in a circle of radius r in terms of θ .

$$\text{Area of Sector} = \frac{\theta}{360} (\text{Area of Circle})$$

As you collected that the area under the probability density function of a random variable is roughly a function of the circle's circumference, the arc length of a circle of radius r is roughly proportional to the circumference of the circle of radius r . This relationship is established proportionally for a circle of any given radius, r .

Example: (Based on the example from the previous section.)

1. If the radius of the circle is 10 units and the angle is 60 degrees, find the arc length and area of the sector.
