Architect Architecture Guide Historical Seattle Shaping:

Shaping Seattle Architecture Jeffrey Karl Ochsner, 2016-06-01 The first edition of Shaping Seattle Architecture published in 1994 introduced readers to Seattle's architects by showcasing the work of those who were instrumental in creating the region's built environment. Twenty years later the second edition updates and expands the original with new information and illustrations that provide an even richer exploration of Seattle architecture. The book begins with a revised introduction that brings the story of Seattle architecture into the twenty-first century and situates developments in Seattle building design within local and global contexts. The book's fifty-four essays present richly illustrated profiles that describe the architects' careers, provide an overview of their major works, and explore their significance. Shaping Seattle Architecture celebrates a wide range of people who helped form the region's built environment. It provides updated information about many of the architects and firms profiled in the first edition. Four individuals newly included in this second edition are Edwin J. Ivey, a leading residential designer; Fred Bassetti, an important contributor to Northwest regional modernism; L. Jane Hastings, one of the region's foremost women in architecture; and Richard Haag, founder of the landscape architecture program at the University of Washington and designer of Gas Works Park and the Bloedel Reserve. The book also includes essays on the buildings of the Coast Salish people who inhabited Puget Sound prior to Euro-American settlement; the role that architects played in speculative housing developments before and after World War II; and the vernacular architecture built by nonprofessionals that makes up a portion of the fabric of the city. Shaping Seattle Architecture concludes with a substantial reference section updated to reflect the last twenty years of research and publications. A locations appendix offers a geographic guide to surviving works. The research section directs interested readers to further resources, and the appendix Additional Significant Seattle Architects provides thumbnail sketches of nearly 250 important figures not included in the main text.

Shaping Seattle Architecture Jeffrey Karl Ochsner, 1994 Seattle's growth has been remarkable from a population of only 3,500 in 1880 to over 500,000 in 1990, and the Puget Sound region exploded to a population of nearly three million. This book focuses on those whose design shaped the physical form of the city and region. Forty-five generously illustrated profiles of architects and firms provide an overview of Seattle's architectural history as well as a hand reference guide to the life and work of these designers. Jeffrey Ochsner's introductory chapter summarizes the main currents of Seattle's architectural history, relating it both to the city's history and to national and international trends in architecture. Three special essays focusing on the region's Native American architecture, on the impact of pattern books, plan books, and periodicals, and on vernacular and popular architecture, ordinary structures often built without the participation of professional designers, are valuable additions to the book. Only architects no longer actively practicing are included in the individual profiles, but an appendix providing over eighty thumbnail sketches of additional significant Seattle architects and the works for which they are most noted does include recent AIA Seattle Medal winners. Non-Seattle architects who designed major Seattle structures are listed separately Another appendix lists the extant buildings mentioned in the text along with their current names and addresses including buildings across the Northwest and elsewhere Sections on sources of information and on researching Seattle architecture provide suggestions for finding out more about a particular architect building or project Among those architects and firms featured are Mother Joseph Esther Pariseau Elmer Fisher John Parkinson Kirtland Cutter Ellsworth Storey Arthur Loveless Robert C Reamer Lionel Pries Elizabeth Ayer Fred Anhalt Paul Thiry Paul Kirk Roland Terry and Victor Steinbrueck Certificate of Recognition awarded by AKCHO Association of King County Historical Organizations May 1995 Award of Merit presented by Washington Trust for Historic Preservation October 1995
