4 Student A:
I wasn't a very motivated student when I was younger, so I failed my exams in 1999 and had to retake them the following summer. I'd already decided I wanted to take a gap year then go to business school, so this time I completed all the coursework and revised thoroughly; I passed easily. I spent a year abroad as an assistant in a secondary school and then went to business school – I'd already applied and successfully attended an interview before revisiting my exams.
In my second year as an undergraduate, I spent a semester as an intern at Hewlett Packard, which was very rewarding. In fact, I went straight into a job at HP after I graduated the following June. They encouraged me to do a Master's degree by correspondence – I just have to finish writing a dissertation. I need a break now, but I may take a sabbatical to study for an MBA in a few years' time.

5 Student B:

Intelligent Tutoring Systems Vincent Aleven, Judy Kay, Jack Mostow, 2010-05-29 The 10th International Conference on Intelligent Tutoring Systems ITS 2010 continued the bi annual series of top flight international conferences on the use of advanced educational technologies that are adaptive to users or groups of users. These highly interdisciplinary conferences bring together researchers in the learning sciences, computer science, cognitive or educational psychology, cognitive science, artificial intelligence, machine learning, and linguistics. The theme of the ITS 2010 conference was Bridges to Learning, a theme that connects the scientific content of the conference and the geography of Pittsburgh, the host city. The conference addressed the use of advanced technologies as bridges for learners and facilitators of robust learning outcomes. We received a total of 186 submissions from 26 countries on 5 continents: Australia, Brazil, Canada, China, Estonia, France, Georgia, Germany, Greece, India, Italy, Japan, Korea, Mexico, The Netherlands, New Zealand, Pakistan, Philippines, Saudi Arabia, Singapore, Slovakia, Spain, Thailand, Turkey, the UK, and USA. We accepted 61 full papers (38%) and 58 short papers. The diversity of the field is reflected in the range of topics represented by the papers submitted, selected by the authors. Best Practices in Teaching Nursing Joanne Noone, Paula Gubrud, 2023-09-21 As accreditation standards and licensure exam expectations evolve, nurse educators are increasingly challenged to design curricula that encompass an ever expanding amount of content with a concurrent focus on clinical judgment and preparation for practice. Best Practices in Teaching Nursing empowers readers with a detailed perspective on advances in nursing pedagogies that support the development of deep understanding and effective clinical judgment among students. Authored by expert nurse educators, this unique text helps foster exceptional education experiences with an emphasis on practical application focused on teaching and assessing learners. Current and best practices are grounded within nursing as a practice profession and incorporate the science of learning, reflecting the most current research based insights and proven pedagogical approaches. Scientific American, 1884 Monthly magazine devoted to topics of general scientific interest. How Can the Human Mind Occur in the Physical Universe? John R. Anderson, Richard King Mellon Professor of Psychology and Computer Science, Carnegie Mellon University, 2007-07-18 The question for me is how can the human mind occur in the physical universe. We now know that the world is governed by physics. We now understand the way biology nestles comfortably within that. The issue is how will the mind do that as well. Allen Newell, December 4, 1991, Carnegie Mellon University. The argument John Anderson gives in this book was inspired by the passage above from the last lecture by one of the pioneers of cognitive science. Newell describes what for him is the pivotal question of scientific inquiry, and Anderson gives an answer that is emerging from the study of brain and behavior. Humans share the same basic cognitive architecture with all primates, but they have evolved abilities to exercise abstract control over cognition and process more complex relational patterns. The human cognitive architecture consists of a set of largely independent modules associated with different brain regions. In this book, Anderson discusses in detail how these various modules can combine to produce behaviors as varied as driving a car and solving an algebraic equation, but focuses principally on two of the modules the declarative and procedural The declarative module involves a memory system that moment by moment attempts to give each person the most appropriate possible window into his or her past The procedural module involves a central system that strives to develop a set of productions that will enable the most adaptive response from any state of the modules Newell argued that the answer to his question must take the form of a cognitive architecture and Anderson organizes his answer around the ACT R architecture but broadens it by bringing in research from all areas of cognitive science including how recent work in brain imaging maps onto the cognitive architecture

Production System Models of Learning and Development David Klahr, Pat Langley, Robert Neches, 1987 Cognitive psychologists have found the production systems class of computer simulation models to be one of the most direct ways to cast complex theories of human intelligence There have been many scattered studies on production systems since they were first proposed as computational models of human problem solving behavior by Allen Newell some twenty years ago but this is the first book to focus exclusively on these important models of human cognition collecting and giving many of the best examples of current research In the first chapter Robert Neches Pat Langley and David Klahr provide an overview of the fundamental issues involved in using production systems as a medium for theorizing about cognitive processes emphasizing their theoretical power The remaining chapters take up learning by doing and learning by understanding discrimination learning learning through incremental refinement learning by chunking procedural learning and learning by composition A model of cognitive development called BAIRN is described and a final chapter reviews John Anderson's ACT theory and discusses how it can be used in intelligent tutoring systems including one that teaches LISP programming skills In addition to the editors the contributors are Yuichiro Anzai Hokkaido University Japan Paul Rosenbloom Stanford and Allen Newell Carnegie Mellon Stellan Ohlsson University of Pittsburgh Clayton Lewis University of Colorado Boulder Iain Wallace and Kevin Bluff Deakin University Australia and John Anderson Carnegie Mellon David Klahr is Professor and Head of the Department of Psychology at Carnegie Mellon University Pat Langley is Associate Professor Department of Information and Computer Science University of California Irvine and Robert Neches is Research Computer Scientist at University of Southern California Information Sciences Institute
