The approach of the book is novel and innovative in different ways. First of all, given the complexity of the research, an original interdisciplinary approach has been implemented which brings together historians, history educators, and social psychologists to examine representations of colonialism in history education in different countries around the world while drawing on different theoretical frameworks. Secondly, given the interest in the interplay between collective memory, popular historical culture, social representations, and the state of historical knowledge within academia, a diachronic approach is implemented, examining the evolving representations of the colonial past and connecting them to developments within society at large and academia. This will allow for a deeper understanding of the processes under examination. Thirdly, studies from various corners of the world are included in the book. More specifically, the project includes research from three categories of countries: former colonizer countries including England, Spain, Italy, France, Portugal, and Belgium; countries having been both colonized and colonizer, Chile; and former colonized countries including Zimbabwe, Malta, and Mozambique. This selection allows pairing up the countries under review as former colonizing/colonized ones, for instance, Portugal/Mozambique, United Kingdom/Malta, allowing for an in-depth comparison between the countries involved. Before reaching the research core, three introductory chapters outline three general issues. The book starts with addressing the different approaches and epistemological underpinnings of history and social psychology as academic disciplines hold. In a second chapter, evolutions within international academic colonial historiography are analyzed with a special focus on the recent development of New Imperial History. A third chapter analyses history textbooks as cultural tools and political means of transmitting historical knowledge and representations across generations. The next ten chapters form the core of the book in which evolving representations of colonial history from mid 19th century until decolonization in the 1960s and 1970s are examined, explained, and reflected upon for the above-mentioned countries. This is done through a history textbook analysis in a diachronic perspective. For some countries, the analysis dates back to textbooks published after the Second World War; for other countries, the focus will be more limited in time. The research presented is done by historians and history educators as well as by social psychologists. In a concluding chapter, an overall overview is presented in which similarities and differences throughout the case studies are identified, interpreted, and reflected upon.

The Battle of Britain in the Modern Age, 1965–2020 Garry Campion, 2019-09-26

The Battle of Britain has held an enchanted place in British popular history and memory throughout the modern era. Its transition from history to heritage since 1965 confirms that the 1940 narrative shaped by the State has been sustained by historians, the media, popular culture, and through non-governmental heritage sites, often with financing from the National Lottery Heritage Fund. Garry Campion evaluates the Battle's revered place in British society and its influence on national identity, considering its historiography and revisionism, the postwar lives of the Few, their leaders, and memorialization, its depictions on screen and in commercial products, the RAF Museum's Battle of Britain Hall, third sector heritage attractions, and finally fighter airfields including RAF Hawkinge as a case study.
