

USING A MANNEQUIN

A mannequin (also called a model or dummy) for figure or dress design is an often articulated doll used for artistic studies, demonstrations, measurements and reference especially in display or in the classroom.

The artist's mannequin already handles some of the body's basic shapes, rounded, geometric shapes. The mannequin will have some measure of volume but it can be given your mannequin in different poses and poses drawing it. If you are taking a drawing course, it can be helpful to use a mannequin to practice specific poses that you find particularly difficult.

Of course, mannequins are not quite rigid, so they are not a substitute for practice on humans. On the other side of the flip and observe all of the figure (or character) before to make sure your figure study matches.

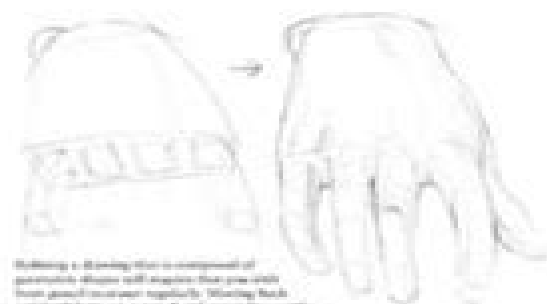

Use carefully
natural systems

PRACTICE DRAWING SHAPES

Commonly shapes of all kinds can be used to construct almost any complex object you want to draw. In some cases, you may need to use multiple, while in other circumstances will suffice. In construction of the drawing, refer to the help.

Building a drawing that is composed of geometric shapes will require that you start from general movement together. Working back and forth between a point of view and possibly a general position. However, when to pose hand and wrist to those who are slightly away from the body. When the position, you are carefully lifting the whole hand up together, lifting the wrist to the same level as the drawing, moving from one point to another, then spending time long to one spot.

DRAWING FEET

Using shapes to help you observe, drawing feet is not as easy as drawing them from looking at.

Ensure your feet are drawn with a natural flow.

Remember your feet are not as simple as they seem. They are not just a flat surface, they are a complex shape.

When you position the foot, make sure the foot is not too far from the body. The foot should be in a natural position.

DRAWING A HEAD STARTS WITH A CIRCLE, AN oval, AND A CROSS

They need to be positioned depending on where the face is located. There is more to this in the section on head and head expression.

- The circle represents the skull when the face is located.
- The oval is the front of the face (and jaw).
- The cross is the middle of the face, and the front of the face when the face is located.
- Another oval can be added to the side of the head when the face is located.
