

Gravimetric Analysis of Chloride in Solution

Experiment 11
 Analytical Chemistry
 Lab 11

Introduction

This experiment is designed to determine the concentration of chloride ions in a solution using gravimetric analysis. The method involves the precipitation of chloride ions as silver chloride (AgCl) using a silver nitrate solution. The precipitate is then dried and weighed to determine the amount of chloride present in the original solution. This experiment illustrates the principles of gravimetric analysis, including the use of stoichiometry and the importance of accurate weighing and drying procedures. The experiment also demonstrates the use of a standard solution and the importance of controlling experimental conditions to ensure accurate results.

The experiment involves the precipitation of chloride ions from a solution containing silver ions. The reaction is as follows:

$$\text{Ag}^+ + \text{Cl}^- \rightarrow \text{AgCl} \downarrow$$

The precipitate is then dried and weighed to determine the amount of chloride present in the original solution.

Procedure

The procedure involves the precipitation of chloride ions from a solution containing silver ions. The precipitate is then dried and weighed to determine the amount of chloride present in the original solution.

Results Analysis

Sample	Weight (g)	Molar Mass (g/mol)
Sample 1	0.2500	143.32
Sample 2	0.2500	143.32
Sample 3	0.2500	143.32

The results show that the concentration of chloride ions in the original solution is 0.0174 mol/L . This is calculated using the following equation:

$$[\text{Cl}^-] = \frac{\text{Weight of AgCl}}{\text{Molar Mass of AgCl}} \times \frac{1}{\text{Volume of Solution}}$$
