Career Moves Athena Vongalis-Macrow, 2014-02-05

Mentoring and career guidance are the missing ingredients in women's career planning at the higher education level. Career Moves recognizes and gives voice to some of the common career concerns of women in higher education and responds to these through well-informed, researched, and experiential chapters focussing on interests specific to women in academia. Career Moves draws on the substantial knowledge, experience, and information of successful women currently working in higher education. Each chapter presents strategic information for academics working in higher education who may be seeking insider's advice about negotiating their careers. The authors, as mentors, reflect, discuss, and offer critical learning to the readers. The aim is to help guide and shape women's career moves in higher education. In this international edition, authors have given personal accounts of what works and how women could prepare for the next stages of their academic careers. Authors have given sociological accounts of obstacles and how these can impede women if they are not aware of strategies to overcome barriers. Insights about successful mentoring programs are highlighted to provide possible models for organizations. Career Moves is an international collection of book chapters that explore a range of specific issues that all women in higher education face or will face as they move up the career ladder.

Mentoring for the Professions Aimee Howley, Mary Barbara Trube, 2014-10-01

This edited volume brings together conceptual and empirical work from various professional fields to inform a perspective on mentoring that goes beyond what is needed for today and orients toward what is needed for the future in order to promote healthy and productive organizations. This perspective is important because the pace of change in organizations is rapid and increasingly so. Under conditions of rapid and ongoing change, employees, students, and colleagues all are learners, and the learning needs of these adults demand meaningful and focused strategies for professional development. A major strategy with demonstrated value for fostering learning among adults is mentoring, which contributes both relational and structural support for such learning. This support helps organizations build communities of practice in which colleagues alternate the role of mentor and mentee by sharing different types of expertise and different perspectives on organizational challenges. Chapters within the book focus on theoretical perspectives on mentoring, the connection between change and mentoring, the character of the leadership that mentoring entails, the developmental processes that mentees experience, the transformation of the mentee as a result of mentoring the value of matching mentor and mentee styles and the role of mentoring in organizational team building Furthermore some chapters explore the similarities and differences in individual versus group mentoring And some of the contributions elaborate linkages among mentoring concepts and those used in related practices such as coaching and distributed leadership
