Franklin D. Roosevelt is shown in the center of the group, surrounded by other members of the Roosevelt family. The photo is a black and white portrait, likely from the mid-20th century. The group is posed in a formal setting, with some individuals standing and others seated. The image is somewhat faded and has a grainy texture, characteristic of older newspaper prints.

- Chemical Reaction A chemical reaction is a process in which one or more substances (reactants) combine to form one or more new substances (products). The substances that enter the reaction are called reactants, and the substances that are formed are called products. The reaction is represented by a chemical equation, which shows the reactants on the left, the products on the right, and an arrow pointing from left to right to indicate the direction of the reaction. For example, the reaction of hydrogen and oxygen to form water is represented by the equation: $2H_2 + O_2 \rightarrow 2H_2O$.
- Chemical Reaction Rate The rate of a chemical reaction is a measure of how fast the reaction proceeds. It is usually expressed in terms of the change in concentration of a reactant or product per unit time. The rate of a reaction can be affected by several factors, including temperature, concentration, and the presence of a catalyst. For example, the rate of the reaction between hydrogen and oxygen increases as the temperature increases.
- Chemical Equilibrium A chemical reaction is said to be in equilibrium when the rates of the forward and reverse reactions are equal, and the concentrations of the reactants and products remain constant. This state is reached when the system has reached a minimum in its free energy. The equilibrium constant, K , is a measure of the extent to which a reaction proceeds. It is defined as the ratio of the concentrations of the products to the concentrations of the reactants, each raised to the power of its stoichiometric coefficient. For example, for the reaction $2H_2 + O_2 \rightleftharpoons 2H_2O$, the equilibrium constant is $K = \frac{[H_2O]^2}{[H_2]^2 [O_2]}$.
