
These findings indicate the use of generic, qualitative, quantitative, and integrative research methods is not good practice, with some evidence of bias in favour of qualitative research, and suggests that the existing research on the topic is flawed. It is concluded that there is a need for a new approach to research synthesis in the field of research synthesis.

Abstract

These authors proposed a group of four variables: cognitive-motivational, social, emotional, and physical. They found that the four variables were related to the 21 symptoms of stress. However, the four variables were not related to the 21 symptoms of stress. The authors found that the four variables were related to the 21 symptoms of stress. The authors found that the four variables were related to the 21 symptoms of stress.
