

INTRODUCTION TO GEOLOGY.

- Better understanding of geology may help to predicts and prepare for future events.

GEOLOGY: The study of the Earth and how it works.

GEOLOGISTS: Study and investigation processes and material responsible for the formation of different land forms.

The nature of Geology:

- Geologic processes reshape Earth's interior and sculpt its surface.
- They determine the distribution of metal and petroleum, and they control which places are most susceptible natural disasters.
- Geology is the study of ancient sea, rivers, and other environments, the organisms that inhabited such environments, and the formation and destruction of mountain ranges and other land-forms.
- Geology encompasses factors, such as climate and the availability of water, that are critical to ecosystems.

How does Geology effect our everyday lives?

1. GEOLOGIC RECOURSE DEPENDENCE: The most important geologic resource that drives our modern society is energy. The availability of petroleum gave rise to the development of the internal combustion engine (Industrial Revolution). We had advances in agricultural techniques and practices resulted in an increased supply of food & raw material. This was essential for economic growth and population growth, both of which depend 100% on availability of affordable energy.
2. ECONOMICS & POLITICS: Geology controls the distribution of energy resources and the materials required to build houses, cars, and factories. These resources are not equally distributed, therefore no country is self-sufficient and results in wars to secure these resources.
3. DISTRIBUTION OF NATURAL RECOURSES: Resources are distributed in different ways and in different amounts throughout the world. Often the result of past geologic processes such as volcanic activity or tectonic movement, this unequal distribution means that various quantities of certain resources are only available at specific locations. Mineral deposits can be classified on the basis of the geologic mechanism responsible for concentrating the valuable substance.
4. SUITABLE BUILDING SITES: Some areas are suitable building sites, but other areas are underlain by unstable geologic materials that could cause damage to any structure built there.
