their subagents and multi organism systems and in this way offer a theoretical platform for integrating biosemiotics with both natural science and the humanities social sciences Agents are autonomous systems that incorporate knowledge on how to make sense of their environment and use it to achieve their goals The functions of all agents are supported by mechanisms at the lowest level however the explanatory power of mechanistic analysis is not sufficient for complex agents Non mechanistic methods rely on the goal directedness of agents whose dynamics follow self stabilized dynamic attractors The properties of attractors depend on stable or slowly changing factors and such dependencies can be interpreted as sign relations if they are adaptive in nature Agents can replace or redirect mechanisms on demand in order to preserve their functions for performing higher level semiotic functions mechanisms are thus only means We assume that mechanism and semiosis are not mutually exclusive and that simple agents can interpret signs mechanistically This assumption allows us to extend semiotic analysis to all agents including ribosomes in cells computers and robots This book challenges established traditions in natural science and the humanities social sciences semiotics no longer appears as restricted to humans and rational thinking and biology is no longer limited to rely exclusively on mechanistic reasoning

An Ape Ethic and the Question of Personhood Gregory F. Tague, 2020-03-05 Gregory F Tague's An Ape Ethic and the Question of Personhood argues that great apes are moral individuals because they engage in a land ethic as ecosystem engineers to generate ecologically sustainable biomes for themselves and other species Tague shows that we need to recognize apes as eco engineers in order to save them and their habitats and that in so doing we will ultimately save earth's biosphere The book draws on extensive empirical research from the ecology and behavior of great apes and synthesizes past and current understanding of the similarities in cognition social behavior and culture found in apes Importantly this book proposes that differences between humans and apes provide the foundation for the call to recognize forest personhood in the great apes While all ape species are alike in terms of cognition intelligence and behaviors there is a vital contrast unlike humans great apes are efficient ecological engineers Therefore simian forest sovereignty is critical to conservation efforts in controlling global warming and apes should be granted dominion over their tropical forests Weaving together philosophy biology socioecology and elements from eco psychology this book provides a glimmer of hope for future acknowledgment of the inherent ethic that ape species embody in their eco centered existence on this planet
