Religion is universal human culture No phenomenon is more widely shared or more intensely studied yet there is no agreement on what religion is Now in Faces in the Clouds anthropologist Stewart Guthrie provides a provocative definition of religion in a bold and persuasive new theory Guthrie says religion can best be understood as systematic anthropomorphism that is the attribution of human characteristics to nonhuman things and events Many writers see anthropomorphism as common or even universal in religion but few think it is central To Guthrie however it is fundamental Religion he writes consists of seeing the world as humanlike As Guthrie shows people find a wide range of humanlike beings plausible Gods spirits abominable snowmen HAL the computer Chiquita Banana We find messages in random events such as earthquakes weather and traffic accidents We say a fire rages a storm wreaks vengeance and waters lie still Guthrie says that our tendency to find human characteristics in the nonhuman world stems from a deep seated perceptual strategy in the face of pervasive if mostly unconscious uncertainty about what we see we bet on the most meaningful interpretation we can If we are in the woods and see a dark shape that might be a bear or a boulder for example it is good policy to think it is a bear If we are mistaken we lose little and if we are right we gain much So Guthrie writes in scanning the world we always look for what most concerns us living things and especially human ones Even animals watch for human attributes as when birds avoid scarecrows In short we all follow the principle better safe than sorry Marshalling a wealth of evidence from anthropology cognitive science philosophy theology advertising literature art and animal behavior Guthrie offers a fascinating array of examples to show how this perceptual strategy pervades secular life and how it characterizes religious experience Challenging the very foundations of religion Faces in the Clouds forces us to take a new look at this fundamental element of human life GO WILD! Tamara Demers,Toni Minicucci,2016-01-01 A jungle unit of study where activities focus on language math and arts Just as the unit title suggests a jungle unit of study is a unique and exciting learning experience for young children Teachers enthusiasm and preparation will motivate students to swing into action and consequently develop many new concepts
