

Short Answer Questions

Question 1

Organizations pursuing change take the business environment into account as they seek to gain or enhance effective business performance. But is being aware of, reacting to, and responding to the environment necessary?

- a. It is because organizations are important stakeholders. Owners or other stakeholders, and not others, drive the business. It is an important responsibility to acknowledge that and to identify solutions to meeting their expectations and interests and "live with" consequences/implications. Answer:
- b. It is because not responding/acting is a business decision. There are benefits/risks associated with responding/acting that is generally higher or lower on a scale of being good/beneficial/desirable.
- c. The business organization is faced by stakeholders with explicit, stated, and more often hidden, clear goals, expectations and intentions and the business is a rational response.
